Facebook has several options to manage the settings of your account. You can review and change the settings by clicking on the down arrow in the upper right corner of your account and then selecting Settings (in the Classic Facebook version) or Settings & Privacy (in the New Facebook version). From here, you can review numerous different options as listed below.
Facebook has several security settings that can help you monitor the security of your account. To control the security and logins, use the settings shown here.
YOUR FACEBOOK INFORMATION

Facebook has several options to manage your Facebook information and/or deactivate or delete your account. To control your information, use the settings shown below.

PRIVACY

Facebook has many privacy and sharing options. To control how much information is shared, use the settings shown below (such as Only Me, Friends Only) for (1) Your Activity (2) How people find/contact you (3) Tags and (4) Apps/Websites.

These settings allow you to control who can post to your timeline, who can tag you in posts, and allow you to review any posts before they show on your timeline. By changing to “Only Me,” turning off the ability of others to share your posts, excluding other posts you’re tagged in before the post appears on your timeline, you can better control posts to your account.
